About Gregbennett guitars

With a 70-year history, Samick, a master of musical instrument manufacturing, sought to create a brand with its own unique identity, built upon the know-how gained from producing for the world's leading brands.

To bring this vision to life, Samick embraced the design philosophy of the renowned luthier, Greg Bennett. His core philosophy was to create guitars that feel special and unique to the player, yet as comfortable and familiar as an instrument they have cherished for years. Guided by the belief that a guitar should be visually inspiring regardless of its price, the foundational designs for all current models were conceptualized and perfected in his Nashville studio.

Greg Bennett's design legacy was built on a commitment to uncompromising quality. Premium tonewoods sourced from around the world—like ebony from Africa and rosewood from India—along with professional-grade hardware from Fishman® and Grover®, were essential to making his vision a reality. Continuing this spirit, the craftsmen at Samick elevate sound and durability by constantly improving the wiring, electronics, and structural integrity of the guitars.

This spirit, which began as a "labor of love," endures today. Every instrument undergoes a final inspection and meticulous setup before it reaches the player's hands. Carried on by the craftsmen at Samick, Greg Bennett guitars honor his original vision by delivering professional quality, thoughtful design, and exceptional value to all musicians.
